“Taking the Recovery of 19th-Century Women Writers Beyond the Academy”

Dr. Anne Boyd Rioux
March 18, 2022 | 3:30pm – 4:30pm
ABL Lecture Hall & Zoom
Reception to Follow

Dr. Anne Boyd Rioux began her career publishing with Johns Hopkins University Press, a thrill for any scholar. But after the book she had poured her heart and soul into was priced at $85, and reviews trickled out over 1-4 years, she decided that her next book, a biography of Constance Fenimore Woolson, should not suffer the same fate. So she began her journey from academia into the world of trade publishing, and now she wants to help illuminate the way for others, particularly those working on the recovery of neglected 19th-century writers who will only disappear again unless we do more to ensure their survival.
