

META

Issue No 2 | December 2018 |

Volume 1

IN THIS ISSUE

PG. 2

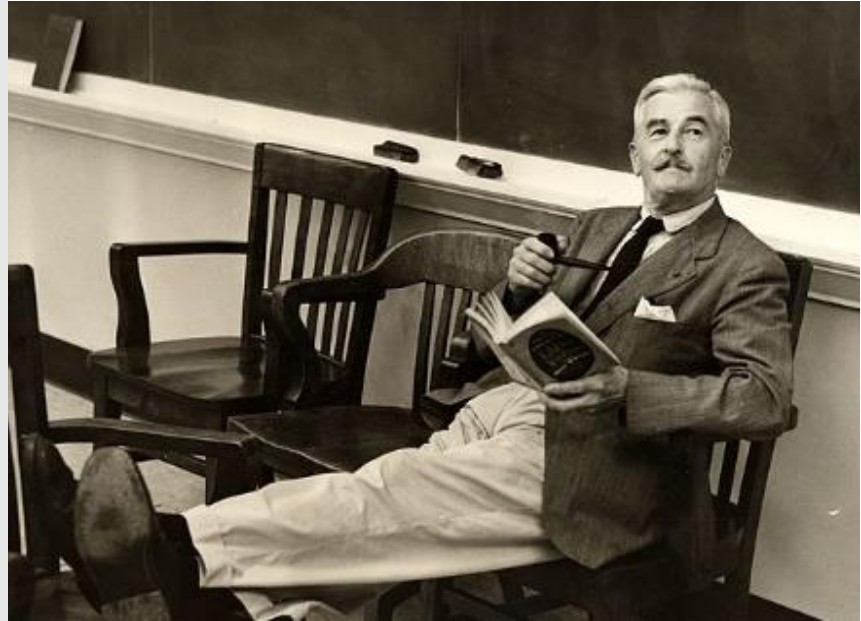

Killing our Darlings
Find out what Make It Stick
has to say about Learning
Styles Theory

PG. 2

TLTCon 2019

Blog post – Killing our Darlings

“In writing, you must kill all your darlings.” That’s advice from William Faulkner where he is encouraging writers not to shy from deleting favorite but useless passages from manuscripts. It may be helpful advice for teachers, too. Few theories are as dear as learning styles theory (LST), . . .
(To continue reading, click here.)

Mark Van
Doren
(1943)

A democracy that is interested in its future will give each of its members as much liberal education as he can take . . .

SAVE THE DATE! MAY 16 17

The Teaching, Learning & Technology Conference

May 16-17, 2019

Keynote: Dr. Henry Roediger

Co-Author of Make It Stick: The Science of Successful Learning

Call for proposals:
December 17th

COLLEGE of CHARLESTON
TEACHING, LEARNING AND TECHNOLOGY

Attendees will receive a free copy of Make It Stick at a registration event on March 14, 2019 to promote Roediger’s visit