

Vol. 2 | Issue 3 | March 2019

A Bridge

My role of instructional technologist bridges pedagogical divides through trainings, consultations, podcasts, and blogposts so that faculty can learn and share new ideas with each other. Please let me know how I can help you.

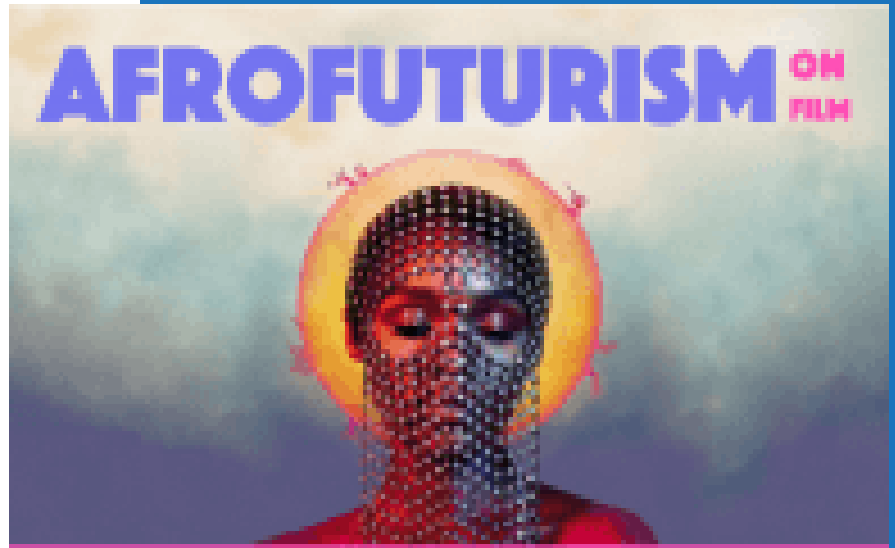

~ Mike

Inside This Issue

- Episode 3 – Watching Films Critically with Mari Crabtree
- The Pomodoro Technique of Writing Workshop
- TLTCon – Save the Date!
- For Lovers of Film Noir (Win a $5 gift card!)

[Episode 3 – Watching Films
Critically with Mari Crabtree](#)

Click on the above link to catch the conversation I had with Mari Crabtree of African American Studies about designing a film festival. Thanks, Mari!

Education is the most powerful weapon which you can use to change the world.

Nelson Mandela (1918-2013)

March Workshop

The Pomodoro Technique

Wanting to become more efficient with your time spent writing? The Pomodoro Technique is a writing practice that many have found vital to becoming successful writers.

TLT CONFERENCE 2019

COLLEGE of
CHARLESTON
TEACHING AND LEARNING TEAM

For Educators, Instructional Technologists & Designers
in Higher Education

Keynote: Dr. Henry Roediger

Best Practices • Innovative Teaching • Lessons Learned • Pedagogy

MAY 16-17th

College of Charleston

tlt.cofc.edu/tltcon

#TLTCON19

Put the blame on Mame,
boys
Put the blame on Mame

For Lovers of Film Noir: Can you name this movie?