Course Description:
Honors students arrive on campus with immense energy and potential, and with a proven readiness to pursue personal and professional growth. All of this energy and potential requires a network of powerful connections and a flexible framework that can help students not only articulate their most compelling ideas, goals, and ambitions, but help them transform their ideas into action, their goals into accomplishments, and their ambitions into evidence. In the Honors College, we power this transformation in multiple ways, but it all starts with the Honors First-Year Experience Course–Beyond George Street.

BGS is a series of workshops led by the Honors faculty team. It is offered exclusively to first-year Honors students to provide a dynamic, interdisciplinary introduction to the life of a scholar-citizen. Our goal is to empower students to take control of their college careers by equipping them with the tools and knowledge they need to succeed, and by leading them towards rich opportunities for academic, campus, and community engagement. Students will discuss topics and experience events of broad intellectual and practical import as they meet outstanding faculty from across campus and discover the many opportunities and resources available to them at the College of Charleston and beyond. In addition to attending their individual BGS sessions, students will partner with a broad coalition of academic and community leaders to participate in a large-scale community engagement project called Honors Engaged.
Through a series of reflective exercises and specific writing tasks, students will formulate their ideas and strategies regarding potential majors, career paths, and life goals. This work will culminate in a final portfolio of crucial documents and representative work that students will continue to develop throughout their college careers. Offering students the opportunity to bond as a living-learning community through collaborative assignments, small-group discussion, and meaningful community engagement, BGS seeks to be a stimulating, practical, and compelling introduction to life in the Honors College. What does it mean to get beyond George Street—that avenue running through the center of campus? It means moving from the classroom to independent research; from campus out into the community; from home to the international stage; from where and who you are now, to where and who you want to be next week, next month, next year, and in the decade ahead.

Course Materials and Supplies:
The required, pre-tabbed Honor College binder for the course is available in the College of Charleston Barnes & Noble bookstore. You will also be asked to use freely available online resources related to professional development, such as LinkedIn.

Course Requirements and Graded Work:
Attendance (15%): Attendance is required. Many activities and assignments will be completed during scheduled class periods; your successful completion of these activities will be dependent on your attendance as the resources made available during class will not necessarily be available outside of class. You are allowed one absence, whether excused or unexcused. Use it only when you need it. Any absences beyond the first will result in your attendance grade being lowered incrementally: from an A to an A-, for example, or from a B- to a C+. While this attendance policy remains firm, we will be flexible in cases where excessive absence is due to unavoidable issues involving personal health or family crises.

Class Engagement (10%): Participation in all aspects of class is essential. You are expected to actively engage in class activities, to contribute meaningfully to discussions, and to display dedication and earnest effort in exploring the class topics and tasks. This is simply what honors students do. Your PF will address any shortcoming in this area with you personally either over e-mail or during one of your consultation meetings. If you fail to address concerns regarding engagement that your PF or one of the faculty members brings up with you, your grade will be lowered incrementally: from an A to an A-, for example, or from a B- to a C+.

Individual Consultations (10%): In addition to regular class sessions, you will be required to attend four individual consultations outside of regular class sessions with your peer facilitator throughout the semester. While each session will have a particular purpose, there will be ample time to address broader concerns and just to connect with your peer facilitator one-on-one.

Portfolio (40%): Throughout the semester you will create a portfolio that will represent your accomplishments across your college career. Because the portfolio is a semester-long project, it will go through several revisions in response to peer edits, in-class workshops, outside input from Academic Writing instructors and Writing Lab staff, and feedback from PFs and class leaders. Your portfolio will include the following documents:
• PACE Navigator: This document, a comprehensive planning tool that you will use throughout your time in the Honors College, allows you to chart out your individual academic plan in addition to noting professional and community engagement plans. We will spend time in class discussing the best methods for long- and short-term planning on the navigator, and this is a document that you should always bring with you to your advising appointments.

• Honors Engaged
  - Honors Engaged Briefing Assignment
  - Honors Engaged Proposal
  - Honors Engaged Final Reflection

• Professional Documents:
  - Resume: This is a standard professional document that captures your academic, professional, and community achievements to date.
  - The Professional Narrative

• Artifacts:
  - Campus Resources Assignment
  - Preparing for Undergraduate Research Assignment
  - The Professor Profile

• Reflections: Completed before or in class.

Honors Engaged (25%): Honors Engaged is the umbrella first-year community engagement program in which all first-year students participate. Through Honors Engaged, you will learn about best practices in community engagement and receive site-specific training to gain the skills necessary to carry out your service role. Informal discussion of your Honors Engaged experience and related community engagement concepts will unfold across the semester. Your Honors Engaged grade will be based on your consistent and earnest participation with your community partner, the quality of your formal proposal, and the completion of your midterm self-assessment. See the Honors Engaged website for more details.

Statement about Laptops and Phones:
Since we will provide very few hard copies of handouts, we encourage you to bring your laptops or tablets to class. This is not an invitation to access any other websites, read email, check Facebook, or to do any work that is not related to work we’re doing in class on any given day. Any student who abuses the privilege to bring laptops to class will lose that privilege, as well as engagement points. It’s unprofessional to conduct business on your phone during class, so start training yourself to turn phones off and put them away before each class.

Honor Code and Academic Integrity:
The Honor Code of the College of Charleston specifically forbids:
1. Lying: knowingly furnishing false information, orally or in writing, including but not limited to deceit or efforts to deceive relating to academic work, to information legitimately sought by an official or employee of the College, and to testimony before individuals authorized to inquire or investigate conduct; lying also includes the fraudulent use of identification cards and fabrication of data, endnotes, footnotes and other information related to academic work.
2. Cheating: the actual giving or receiving of unauthorized, dishonest assistance that might give one student an unfair advantage over another in the performance of any assigned, graded academic work, inside or outside of the classroom, and by any means whatsoever, including but not limited to fraud, duress, deception, theft, talking, making signs, gestures, copying, electronic messaging, photography, unauthorized reuse of previously graded work, unauthorized dual submission, unauthorized collaboration and unauthorized use or possession of study aids, memoranda, books, data, or other information. The term cheating includes engaging in any behavior related to graded academic work specifically prohibited by an instructor in the course syllabus or class discussion.

3. Attempted cheating: a willful act designed to accomplish cheating, but falling short of that goal.

4. Stealing: the unauthorized taking or appropriating of property from the College or from another member of the college community. Note also that stealing includes unauthorized copying of and unauthorized access to computer software.

5. Attempted stealing: a willful act designed to accomplish stealing, but falling short of that goal.

6. Plagiarism:
   6.1. The verbatim repetition, without acknowledgement, of the writings of another author. All significant phrases, clauses, or passages, taken directly from source material must be enclosed in quotation marks and acknowledged in the text itself and/or in footnotes/endnotes.
   6.2. Borrowing without acknowledging the source.
   6.3. Paraphrasing the thoughts of another writer without acknowledgement.
   6.4. Allowing any other person or organization to prepare work which one then submits as his/her own.

Attempted cheating, attempted stealing, and the knowing possession of stolen property shall be subject to the same punishment as the other offenses. Because the potential penalties for an Honor Code violation are extremely serious, all students should be thoroughly familiar with the above definitions and their consequences.

Lying, cheating, attempted cheating, and plagiarism are violations of our Honor Code that, when suspected, are investigated. Each incident will be examined to determine the degree of deception involved.

Incidents where the instructor determines the student’s actions are related more to a misunderstanding will be handled by the instructor. A written intervention designed to help prevent the student from repeating the error will be given to the student. The intervention, submitted by form and signed both by the instructor and the student, will be forwarded to the Dean of Students and placed in the student’s file.

Cases of suspected academic dishonesty will be reported directly by the instructor and/or others having knowledge of the incident to the Dean of Students. A student found responsible by the Honor Board for academic dishonesty will receive a XXF in the course, indicating failure of the course due to academic dishonesty. This status indicator will appear on the student’s transcript for two years after which the student may petition for the XX to be expunged. The F is permanent.
Students should be aware that unauthorized collaboration—working together without permission—is a form of cheating. Research conducted and/or papers written for other classes cannot be used in whole or in part for any assignment in this class without obtaining prior permission from the instructor.

Students can find the complete Honor Code and all related processes in the Student Handbook at http://studentaffairs.cofc.edu/honor-system/studenthandbook/index.php

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities:
If you require academic accommodation due to a disability, please make your section leaders aware of the fact in a confidential manner within the first week of class. Should you have questions about disability services at the College of Charleston, please contact the Center for Disability Services at 953-1431 or visit their website at http://www.College of Charleston.edu/~cds/home.htm.

Shared FYE Learning Outcomes:
Learning Outcome 1: Engaging and Exploring Campus Resources
- By the completion of the Honors First-Year Experience, students will:
  - Understand how to identify and, when appropriate, use relevant academic resources and student support services at College of Charleston. These would include the Center for Student Learning, the Career Center, the Office of Nationally Competitive Awards, the Office of Undergraduate Research and Creative Activities, Counseling and Substance Abuse Services and other appropriate academic resources, student support services, and cultural resources.
    - This will be achieved by having students complete a Resource Engagement portion of an end-of-semester survey in which they identify three key resources and describe how they anticipate using them across their careers at College of Charleston.

Learning Outcome 2: Integrative Learning
- By the completion on the first-year, students will:
  - Understand the various elements of the Honors curriculum in concert with the learning / living environment as inspiring and enabling interdisciplinary connections as well as connections to non-academic activities including community engagement, professional development, and extracurricular involvement.
    - This will be achieved by having students build a final portfolio and e-portfolio that they will be encouraged to develop across their years at the College. The portfolio provides a venue for integrative learning by students as they draw connections not only between diverse courses, but between their coursework and their extra-curricular and professional endeavors.

Additional BGS Learning Objectives:
Learning Objective 3: Engaging
- By the end of the course, students will:
  - Understand the difference between volunteerism and sustained, informed community outreach.
- Have the opportunity to participate in a sustained community outreach initiative that entails a progressive involvement with the Charleston community.
- Be able to analyze service contexts in light of core principles related to asset based community development.

Learning Objective 4: Equipping
- By the end of the Honors First-Year Experience, students will:
  - Draft a set of professional documents, including a resume, a first-semester professional narrative, and a LinkedIn profile.
  - Create a professional, academic, and community engagement action plan that charts out their professional and academic goals over their four years at College of Charleston.
  - Understand how to use College of Charleston resources related to professional development such as the Career Center.

Learning Objective 5: Reflective Empowerment
- By the end of the Honors First-Year Experience, students will:
  - Be able to reflect more clearly on their core values—both those they currently possess and those they might seek—leading to enhanced purpose-identification.
  - Be able to align those core values to the professional, personal, and academic goals they make, leading to increased goal-directedness and overall satisfaction with major life choices.
  - Understand the importance of gaining broad cultural proficiency that enables them to approach ideas and issues pertaining to world events, cultural identity, and academic debate from multiple perspectives with an understanding of the full diversity of human experience.
