Good afternoon Roadrunners!

I hope you and your family have been enjoying a wonderful summer break! Now that EGUSD has a plan for learning to start the 2020-2021 school year, I want to go over what this Distance Learning (DL) plan is going to look like.

Distance Learning this school year will be different from the distance learning of last spring in that it is much more intentional and explicit in its planning. We are very excited that we will be able to distribute grade level textbooks, consumables, books for reading, and other materials typically used in the classroom for instruction, as determined by each grade level team. We hope you will recognize that these additions to our model will make distance learning much more like what students would experience in their school classroom. In addition, we have a specific learning schedule. Mondays will be our "early out" day and will have a slightly different schedule from Tuesdays-Fridays.

There are two terms you will encounter...

- Synchronous learning* - real time online direct instruction, classwork, and assessments with the teacher.
- Asynchronous learning*- recorded lessons, independent work, projects, long term assignments, assessments/tests.

While your child is signed on for the hours listed in the schedule below for synchronous instruction, they may be working with textbooks, reading books, or workbooks. Leaving your child logged in for the period of synchronous instruction allows the teacher to monitor and be available to answer questions, give feedback and individualized instruction, and assess their work. It is very important that your child sign on each day at the scheduled time, because attendance will be taken and participation is the best way to ensure your child's academic growth.
