

Montag stumbled out of the river and followed the railroad until he saw a fire, with hands pressed against it for warmth. He was then accepted into the group and then talked with them about the knowledge of books. Pg. 11

