

After burning the woman, Montag is sick for the first time. He decides not to go to work, and then gets a surprise visit from his captain Beatty. Beatty talks about the job and history of the firemen, then at the end of their talk Beatty gives him a warning to return a stolen book from last night. Beatty then calmly walks out of Montag's house. Montag still shuddering from his talk with Beatty decides to show his wife Mildred all the books he had stolen. He had hidden them all inside the air conditioner and dropped them onto the ground. On the ground there were stacks of books laying there waiting to be read. Mildred screams and runs, but he stops her and calms her down so that they could help him read together. Pg. 4

