Most Cherished Possessions: What Would You Take?

The Jews had to make some difficult decisions when they were ousted from their homes and forced into the ghettos. They could only take what they could carry. This raises the question, what possessions are the most important?

Consider what you would take if you were forced to leave your home and take only what you could carry. (Be realistic! You can't carry a big screen TV! There would be no way to recharge electronic items.) What would you take and why?

Black and White Page

In The Terrible Things, illustrator Stephen Gammell opts for black and white over color. Sometimes, black and white can be the most effective way to convey an emotion or idea. Create a page in your portfolio that uses black and white to make a statement. (See example below.) You may write or illustrate anything you wish.
