

Incentives for Global Public Health: Patent Law and Access to Essential Medicines, edited with Matt Rimmer and Kim Rubenstein
(Cambridge: Cambridge University Press 2010).

Contents

Thomas Pogge, Matthew Rimmer, and Kim Rubenstein

Introduction: Access to Essential Medicines: Public Health and International Law

1. Rochelle Cooper Dreyfuss
TRIPS and Essential Medicines: Must One Size Fit All? Making the WTO Responsive to the Global Health Crisis
2. Andrew Mitchell and Tania Voon
The TRIPS Waiver as a Recognition of Public Health Concerns in the WTO
3. Hitoshi Nasu
Public Law Challenges to the Regulation of Pharmaceutical Patents in the US Bilateral Free Trade Agreements
4. Elizabeth Siew Kuan Ng
Global Health and Development: Patents and Public Interest
5. Thomas Pogge
The Health Impact Fund: Better Pharmaceutical Innovations at Much Lower Prices
6. Kathleen Liddell
The Health Impact Fund: A Critique
7. William W. Fisher and Talha Syed
A Prize System as a Partial Solution to the Health Crisis in the Developing World
8. Thomas Faunce
Innovation and Insufficient Evidence: The Case for a WTO-WHO Agreement on Health Technology Safety and Cost-Effectiveness Evaluation
9. Dianne Nicol and Jane Nielsen
Opening the Dam: Patent Pools, Innovation, and Access to Essential Medicines
10. Krishna Ravi Srinivas
Open Source Drug Discovery: A Revolutionary Paradigm or a Utopian Model?
11. Charles Lawson and Barbara Hocking
Accessing and Benefit Sharing Avian Influenza Viruses through the World Health Organisation: a CBD and TRIPS Compromise thanks to Indonesia's Sovereignty Claim?
12. Matthew Rimmer
The Lazarus Effect: The (RED) Campaign and Creative Capitalism
13. Noah Benjamin Novogrodsky
Beyond TRIPS: The Role of Non-state Actors and Access to Essential Medicines

14. Katharine Young
Securing Health Through Rights
15. Rajshree Chandra
The Role of National Laws in Reconciling Constitutional Right to Health with TRIPS Obligations: An Examination of the Glivec Patent Case in India
16. Jonathan Burton-MacLeod
Tipping Point: Thai Compulsory Licenses Redefine Essential Medicines Debate