Supply Chain Social Sustainability: From the Perspective of a Supplier Operating Under a Restricted Operating Environment

Mohammad Najjar, An-Najah National University
Rani M. M. Shahwan, An-Najah National University
Mahmoud M. Yasin, East Tennessee State University

ABSTRACT

This study is part of a stream of research focusing on the different facets of supply chain management. The main objective of this study is to investigate the adoption of socially sustainable practices within the context of supply chain management under operational and economic restrictions. This field study concludes that there are local and global considerations pertaining to social responsibility within the context of supply chain practices.

Keywords: Sustainable Supply Chain Management, Social Responsibility, Socially Sustainable Practices, Case Study