Assignment Guidelines

1. Critical Article Summaries: Summaries must be a minimum of two pages long.

   Critique the approach or problem outlined in the article, identifying their limitations as well as their potential. Pay particular attention to the following in your summary:

   a. What is/are the main point(s) of the article? Are you convinced by the author's/authors' reasoning? Why or why not?

   b. What are your recommendations? How could the arguments have been more persuasive or the approach more productive?

   c. Think critically! This involves more than simply shooting holes in someone else's theory or approach. Demonstrate that you are able to see more than one side of an issue. Suggest alternatives.

2. Papers

   Goals: 1) Demonstrate the ability to research a topic successfully in depth as demonstrated by locating and citing seminal sources on the chosen topic. 2) Produce a summary of the work of those scholars whose research and interpretations have contributed significantly to our understanding of the chosen topic. 3) Provide a critical evaluation of the issues and possible divergent opinions associated with the analysis of the chosen topic, suggesting possible avenues for further investigation.
Format:

- Papers must be typed (computer or typewriter) with margins of 1".
- Paginate all pages beginning with Page 2!
- Papers must be double-spaced.
- Make sure your name is on the paper and that the paper has a title.

Short paper: The Short Papers are tied to the Oral Presentations (see below). Papers must be a minimum of 10 pages long. You must cite at least 10 sources in constructing your argument. These may be drawn from the e-Reserve articles, but at least three must be sources you have tracked down on your own. NONE of these may be Web sources unless the article comes from a reputable database such as JSTOR and is published in a peer-reviewed journal. Use the Bibliographies from class readings as a starting point for your source search. Other places to find sources include Eureka, EBSCO, WorldCat (see UWM Library Web site for links) and the Anthropological Index On-Line (http://aio.anthropology.org.uk/)

Final Paper: Paper must be a minimum of 20 pages long. You must cite at least 20 sources, at least 15 of which must be sources you have tracked down yourself and NONE of which may be Web sources unless the article comes from a reputable database (see above) and is published in a peer-reviewed journal. You may cite a maximum of five sources from the e-Reserve readings.

When citing sources (whether quoting directly or paraphrasing) within the text, the following rules apply:

The author's last name (include the first initial only if there are two authors with the same last name cited in the paper) followed by the year of the publication, a colon and the page number(s): (Renfrew 1979: 112-15). (This is the standard procedure in anthropological publications). Quotation marks should be used where appropriate, as in the examples below.

Ex. #1 Direct quotation: "The moon is made of green cheese" (McDonald 1989:123).
Ex. #2 Paraphrasing: According to Williams, the moon is made of fried green tomatoes (1888:19-23).

You must include a bibliography with full references at the end of the paper. You may use any of the articles assigned for the class as a template for the bibliography. KEY: Whatever format you choose, BE CONSISTENT!
3. Oral Presentation

Three groups of 3-4 students each will be assigned to investigate a topic in Iron Age European archaeology related to the readings for that week. Each student will produce a short paper on the subtopic and area (see Short Paper format above). The Short Papers are always due the week before the Oral Presentations. Each student is responsible for forwarding the text of their Short Paper to the course reflector (see first page of syllabus) on the due date indicated in the syllabus for their group and non-presenters are expected to produce and bring to class 5 questions/comments based on each Short Paper. Presentations are to be 10 minutes long, followed by a 10 minute discussion period. PowerPoint presentations are expected to be used as a guide; the presentation must be extemporaneous and based on the slides.
