Brief Description of Research Project	We propose to conduct a prospective study where we will recruit women to validate and extend these retrospective findings on the association of clinical, social, and environmental factors with pregnancy. Findings will be used to develop a mobile application freely distributed to provide individually risk-tiered information on community resources on accessibility and mobility to promote healthier pregnancy. Aim 1: Explore the relationship among neighborhood walkability, access to resources, and pregnancy outcomes. Aim 2: Develop individually customized online feeds to promote a neighborhood support environment for healthier motherhood.
