Remote presentations

Jesus Mancilla
Senior UX Researcher
Walmart Labs
Who am I?

- 2009: Cognitive Behavioral Research
- 2014: HCI / UX Research
- 2017: Data Science Detour
- 2019: Back to UX Research
Overview
Quick takes

- You should prepare as if it was a in-person presentation
- Presentations are about what you say not the text in the slides
- Practice!
- Prepare your physical space
- Prepare the material for +/- 50% of the scheduled time
Benefits?

- This might be our new normal take the best out of it (better coffee!)
- If you have social phobia, you are in your safe zone
- You know your equipment
- You don’t have to wear pants (apparently)

Walmart Reports Increased Sales In Tops, Not Bottoms, As More People Telework

March 28, 2020 - 7:59 AM ET
Heard on Weekend Edition Saturday
Advice from experience

A.k.a. My mistakes:

- Close the door, and don’t face a window
- Keep your camera open and your image close to the webcam
- We all have one terrible presentation
Transitions
Takeaways

- Know your subject
- Setup a workspace where you feel comfortable
- Use the slides as a visual aid
- Remember that there are people on the other side
- Engage as much as possible
Questions?
Thank you

Let’s connect:
hello@jgmancilla.com