

GENERAL PROTOCOLS FOR SAFE STUDY GROUPS

These protocols have been approved by the University's Health Advisory Committee to provide guidance to those wishing to coordinate student study groups and to ensure maximum safety.

Faculty members and departments may organize and manage study groups specific to their courses and disciplines as appropriate and desired. Students creating their own study groups should follow these protocols as well.

General Guidance

- Limit study groups to no more than 10 individuals, preferably those with whom you are in regular contact or share pods.
- Departments/programs may facilitate and organize study groups; if so, it is advised to have a contactless sign-up process and designated, COVID-spaced facilities for students to use.

General Protocols

- Everyone must complete the University's daily check-in and adhere to all University COVID protocols, as dictated by FREAS, DPH, state and CDC guidelines, to include:
 - Washing hands and using hand sanitizer frequently
 - Wearing masks
 - Maintaining physical distance of 6' from others
- Wipe down individual spaces and equipment before and after using.
- Do not move furniture

Participants

- Current UD students, staff and faculty only
- All are strongly encouraged to download the COVID Alert DE app to their phone

Capacity

- Limited to the COVID capacity of the room/space as determined by FREAS
- Adherence to maximum occupancy signs is required.
