Recognizing and Helping Students in Distress

A Guide for Faculty and Staff

The Student Behavior Consultation Team
The University of Delaware is committed to maintaining a safe working, learning and living environment for all members of the campus community. The Student Behavioral Consultation Team (SBCT) develops support plans to promote student health, well-being and successful academic experiences; and promotes campus safety through an active process of threat assessment and behavioral intervention. Representatives from Student Life and Campus Safety meet weekly to share information and develop action plans. The SBCT also seeks information from and consults with faculty and staff to identify problematic behaviors.

Members of the campus community concerned about a student are encouraged to involve the SBCT by:

- calling the Office of the Dean of Students, (302) 831-8939
- sending an email to sbct-contact@udel.edu

In an emergency, please call the University of Delaware Police Department at 302-831-2222 or 911.
Recognizing and Helping Students in Distress

Are you concerned about a student’s physical or mental health? Has a student’s behavior disrupted your class or caused you to worry about their future actions? You have the opportunity to help a student avoid dangerous situations and obtain assistance. The SBCT has compiled this guide as an aid for identifying signs of possible distress and making appropriate referrals.

Where do I start?

A situation, observation or instinct tells you to be concerned about a student. But, you’re not sure what to do or where to start and worry that you’ll make things worse. Don’t let that stop you from taking action. Use this resource guide, talk to your supervisor or department chair, or contact the SBCT. Help is available – for your student and for you!
