CompassRed is a predictive analytics and insights company with offices in Wilmington, DE, and Philadelphia, PA. Our team has depth and experience across multiple industries, covering a wide range of solutions and domains. Our data scientists and analysts are fluent in a wide range of techniques including regression, machine learning, AI, and many forms of visual data storytelling. CompassRed prides itself on offering our clients a combination of fast and flexible innovation with world-class data know-how.

We are looking for a data science intern to help us continue to innovate for our customers.

Data Science Intern

Responsibilities:
- Work closely with the data science team to fully understand project requirements
- Turn business questions into actionable insights through the creation of reports and presentations
- Understand the role of analytics in the data science continuum - from engineering to science

Key Requirements:
- A strong understanding of a variety of data science techniques and when to use them. Key techniques include classification, clustering, time-series analysis, and regression.
- Programming knowledge and experience in at least one high level language, including R or Python
- Familiarity with SQL and ETL techniques preferred
- Good technical acumen, excellent analytical skills
- Strong research and investigation skills, attention to details
- Self managed, strong organizational and time management skills
- Exemplifies resourcefulness and creativity
- Exceptional verbal and written communication in English, additional languages advantageous

Ideal Candidate:
- Demonstrate persistence, ability to overcome obstacles
- Strong desire to improve self and skills
- Experience working within a data-driven organization
- Get things done

Commitment:
- 25 hours/week for 10 weeks
- Based out of our Wilmington office
If you're one who believes that data is changing every aspect of our lives, and you want to be a part of a team that is helping organizations be a part of this change - we'd love to hear from you. Email careers@compassred.com or call 302-377-9691