CompassRed is a predictive analytics and insights company with offices in Wilmington, DE, and Philadelphia, PA. Our team has depth and experience across multiple industries, covering a wide range of solutions and domains. Our data scientists and analysts are fluent in a wide range of techniques including regression, machine learning, AI, and many forms of visual data storytelling. CompassRed prides itself on offering our clients a combination of fast and flexible innovation with world-class data know-how.

We are looking for a data acquisition specialist to help us continue to innovate for our customers.

Data Acquisition Specialist

Responsibilities:
- Work closely with the data science team to fully understand data requirements;
- Research and identify potential public data sources, as well as our client’s internal sources
- Evaluate the potential of each data source and generate relevant metadata
- Prepare data for analysis by cleaning and removing outliers, work with team to develop scripts to clean data automatically, document data and analyses

Key Requirements:
- Strong research and investigation skills, attention to details
- Good technical acumen, excellent analytical skills
- Self managed, strong organizational and time management skills
- Exemplifies resourcefulness and creativity
- Exceptional verbal and written communication in English, additional languages advantageous

The ideal candidate
- Demonstrate persistence, ability to overcome obstacles
- Strong desire to improve self and skills
- Experience working within a data-driven organization
- Get things done

If you're one who believes that data is changing every aspect of our lives, and you want to be a part of a team that is helping organizations be a part of this change - we'd love to hear from you.

Email careers@compassred.com or call 302-377-9691