Conceptions Behind Course:  This version of ENG 314 (which satisfies both a requirement for English Majors and the GE-G requirement for all CSUSB students) provides an survey of literary productions of Native Californians, beginning with pre-contact oral materials (now transcribed into written form) and extending up to the present day.  As there are far too many individual tribal cultures and traditions extant within the borders of the state (and extending across the border into Mexico) to consider in just ten weeks, I have selected the texts for this class with two goals in mind.  (1) I aim to provide examples of imaginative work from a wide variety of California Indian writers and, (2) I aim to present works that have the secondary advantage of enabling us to consider the broader historical experiences of Indian people living in California during the period from initial contact with Spanish settlers to the present.  The course materials will enable us to consider the Mission period, the Gold Rush and chaos of early statehood, the assimilationist pressures of the boarding school experience, urban migration and cultural dislocation, and finally, contemporary political and cultural re-assertions on the part of Native Californians.

Course Policies:

Attendance: Attendance in class and participation in discussion are crucial parts of this course. Each student will be allowed no more than three absences during the semester. For each absence beyond three, one-third of a letter grade will be deducted off the student’s final average for the class.

Tardiness: Students who arrive late to class will be marked tardy. Three tardies will add up to an absence.

Late work: Unless prior arrangements have been made with the instructor (owing to extra-ordinary circumstances), late work will not be accepted. Short assignments or quizzes also cannot be made up.

Plagiarism: Plagiarism is the unacknowledged use of another person’s words or ideas. It constitutes a serious breach of the California State University Code of Student Ethics. Everything that a student turns in with his or her name on it must be his or her own work. Depending upon the severity of the case, plagiarism can result in failure for the assignment in question or for the entire course.
Course Requirements: Successful completion of this course requires the completion of all assignments. The grade breakdown is as follows:

- Two Essays (5-6 pages each) 30% each
- A final examination (essays and short answer) 30%
- Bi-Weekly Reading Questions (5 sets) 10%

For All English Majors: All English majors are required to take English 516 (Senior Project); in this course, you will be asked to submit a portfolio of sample papers and exams from your classes. Plan ahead by keeping your syllabi, assignments, papers and exams from all of your English classes. For your portfolio, you will explain how your portfolio materials demonstrate that you have met the goals of the English major. Because it is helpful for you to be familiar with these goals as you go through your courses, you should read them ahead of time at http://english.csusb.edu/undergraduates/mission_goals.html

For English majors interested in a teaching credential: The English Teacher Preparation Program (ETPP) at CSUSB is one of the state-approved English subject matter programs in California. Completion of the program will give you the "English subject matter competence" required to enter any single-subject teaching credential program in California. This means that you will not be required to take the CSET exam. Unless you are sure that English secondary school teaching is not your interest, you should seriously consider completing the ETPP while you are completing your B.A. in English. For the ETPP coursework requirements, please see the CSUSB Catalog, or print out the “Worksheet for English Majors” under the “Advising” link on our English department website <english.csusb.edu>, or consult an English department advisor.

For Students with Disabilities: If you are in need of an accommodation for a disability in order to participate in this class, please contact Services to Students with Disabilities at UH-183. Phone: (909) 537-5238.

Counseling for Students: If you are experiencing stress due to school or life challenges, you can get help at the CSUSB Counseling and Psychological Services. They offer free individual counseling as well as support groups. The Center is located next to the CSUSB dining commons, and their phone number is 909-537-5040. You can also call that phone number to speak with a counselor after-hours and on weekends (24/7). More information on the Counseling and Psychological Services is available at http://psychcounseling.csusb.edu In addition, you can email care@csusb.edu, and someone from the CSUSB CARE Team will help you find the support or resources you may need.
