

Campus1Card Library Research Card:

What is the Library Research Card?

The Library Research Card is the official non-picture ID card available to students enrolled in the Widener University distance learning programs and the on-line programs. Its purpose is to access the library research data bases online and would allow access to a library if you are on a Widener campus. Because this card does not include a photo, it needs to be used in conjunction with some form of official picture identification, such as a driver's license or passport.

The information on the Library Research Card includes the student's:

- full name
- campus ID number
- library barcode number

How do I Qualify?

To qualify for a Library Research Card you must be a currently enrolled student in a Widener University Online Program or Distance Learning Program.

How do I Get a Library Research Card?

To request a Library Research Card send an email to campus1card@widener.edu . The email should include the following information:

Once the C1C Office receives the email request, a Library Research Card will be mailed. Cards typically arrive within a week, but it sometimes can take longer to reach mailing addresses outside the United States.

After the Library Research Card has been printed and mailed a returned email will be sent advising the card is on the way. It will also state that the library barcode information is also available through Campus Cruiser by following these steps. Login to Campus Cruiser go to WebAdvisor/Student Services/Communication/My Library Barcode.

How does a Library Research Card differ from a Campus1Card?

The Campus1Card is the official Widener University campus student ID card. The main difference between the two cards is that the Campus1Card is designed to be a stand-alone ID card, and includes an official photo taken at the Campus1Card Office. The Campus1Card also provides access to a number of on-campus & off-campus services, which the Library Research Card does not.

As a Distance Learning/On-line student, can I get a Campus1Card?

Yes, provided that you come to campus to have your photo taken and pick up your card in person. Please note that the Campus1Card Office does not mail Campus1Cards. If you already received a Library Research Card and come to campus at some later date, you can drop by the Campus1Card Office and trade in your current Library Research Card for a new Campus1Card at no additional cost. (A government issued photo ID is needed to take a picture for the Campus1Card).
