All new students with interest in dance at WashU are strongly encouraged to attend the Dance Placement Class. This class is not an "audition," but a chance for students new to dance at WashU to meet dance faculty, dance majors, and learn information about program curriculum, events and performance opportunities. The class format is informal, including a short ballet barre, followed by modern and jazz combinations to determine appropriate entry level to these course sequences. No signup or preparation is required.

Who should attend:

A) Any student with prior training, interested in dance courses above introductory level.

B) Students who are pre-registered for a course above introductory levels are tentatively enrolled and required to take the placement class to determine appropriate level.

For more information, contact Professor Cecil Slaughter, cslaught@wustl.edu or Professor David Marchant, marchant@wustl.edu.
