

CDTR MEMBERSHIP GUIDELINES

Membership in the CDTR is available to faculty* appointed to participating CDTR institutions or organizations, and who have a professional interest in translational (T3 and T4) diabetes research.

The Executive Committee reviews applications for membership and decides who qualifies.

Two levels of membership are available:

- Full membership includes academic faculty members at Washington University, the University of Missouri, African American Collaborative Obesity Research Network affiliates, and those affiliated with the National Congress of American Indians (NCAI), who are conducting diabetes or related research funded by the NIH, ADA, Juvenile Diabetes Research Foundation or similar funding organizations.
- Provisional membership includes new faculty within the first 5 years of first academic appointment, faculty with expertise in other disciplines developing diabetes or related research programs, or faculty developing diabetes submissions for outside funding.

*Exceptions may be made for those who are not faculty but have a doctorate and are in long-standing research positions. Each exception is subject to review by the Executive Committee.
