

Investigator	University Affiliation	Project Title
Richard Griffey	Washington University in St. Louis School of Medicine	Preventing Adverse Events in Diabetic Ketoacidosis Using a Standardized Care Pathway in the Emergency Department: A Pilot Study
Shiriki Kumanyika	Drexel University Dornsife School of Public Health	Modeling D & I to Scale up Obesity and Diabetes Prevention in Black Communities (AACORN)
Amy McQueen	Washington University in St. Louis School of Medicine	Examining unmet basic needs and healthcare gaps among Medicaid beneficiaries with type II diabetes
Diana Parra Perez	Washington University in St. Louis School of Medicine	Efficacy of a culturally sensitive and linguistically appropriate Internet and mobile-based weight loss therapy in obese Hispanic/Latino adult women
George Schweitzer	Washington University in St. Louis School of Medicine	Influence of supervised exercise training on social and cognitive intrinsic and extrinsic factors and weight loss in people with obesity
Eduardo Simoes	University of Missouri	A Feasibility Pilot to Evaluate the Impact of a Quality Improvement Exchange on Outcomes and Collaboration within Missouri Diabetes Prevention and Control Programs
Melicia Whitt-Glover	Winston-Salem State University	Evaluating the feasibility of translating evidence-based diabetes prevention programs in high risk communities through HBCU-community partnerships