2018 W.M. KECK POSTDOCTORAL PROGRAM IN MOLECULAR MEDICINE
WASHINGTON UNIVERSITY - DIVISION OF BIOLOGY AND BIOMEDICAL SCIENCES

DEADLINE TO RECEIVE MATERIALS: MAY 1, 2018

FROM: Kyunghee Choi, PhD; Chair, Keck Fellowship Selection Committee
TO: Faculty in the Division of Biology & Biomedical Sciences

We are soliciting nominations for fellowships for the 2018 W.M. Keck Postdoctoral Program in Molecular Medicine at Washington University. Three fellowships of $47,484 each will be awarded for the coming year (7/1/18-6/30/19). These fellowships, established with a gift from the Keck Foundation, provide support to outstanding young scientists in the postdoctoral phase of their training.

Eligibility is not restricted with respect to scientific discipline. However, the following limitations do apply:

- Faculty mentor must be a member of the Division of Biology & Biomedical Sciences (DBBS)
- Applicant must have less than two years of postdoctoral training, excluding clinical training, as of July 1, 2018 (the preferred applicant is either just beginning or early in the postdoctoral training period).
- Applicant must not hold any other named fellowship. Priority will be given to applicants who do not have pending fellowship awards from other sources.
- Eligibility: U.S. Citizens only, Permanent Residents are not eligible.
- Nominations are limited to one per faculty mentor. Consideration will be given to those mentors without a recently awarded Keck Fellowship in their lab or those with limited funding sources.
- Applicant should hold a PhD, MD/PhD, or MD degree and show considerable promise for a career in biomedical science.
- Applicant must be in or scheduled to begin training in a WU lab by August 1, 2018 and must have an appointment at Washington University to receive the fellowship award.
