

The Division of Public Health Sciences Postdoctoral Research Fellowship in Health Services Research/Health Economics

Drs. Su-Hsin Chang and Graham Colditz are currently seeking applications for a highly motivated Postdoctoral Research Associate to join the team within the Division of Public Health Sciences in the Washington University School of Medicine in St Louis and Siteman Cancer Center, a National Cancer Institute-designated Comprehensive Cancer Center.

The position involves working on multiple projects in Health Services Research. The opportunity will provide a unique experience in working with large-scale data on obesity, multiple myeloma, organ transplantation, and health disparities. The postdoc will have the opportunity to collaborate with clinical collaborators and research teams focused on these areas.

Applicants with the following experience will be prioritized:

- Working independently with cross-sectional and longitudinal data
- Quantitative modeling and/or machine learning
- Research productivity in manuscript writing

However, all applications will be considered. Applications are considered on a rolling basis.

Eligibility

PhD in Economics, Decision science, Data Science, Epidemiology, Public Health, or a related field.

About the Division of Public Health Sciences

The division has a strong mentoring and career development program with a track record of successfully placing trainees. Successful applicants will be joining a vibrant cohort of postdoctoral fellows across the Division. You'll find ample opportunities to collaborate with epidemiological, clinical, basic science, statistical, and other faculty across the academic campuses of Washington University.

The division is led by Graham Colditz, MD, DrPH, an internationally recognized leader in cancer prevention and control. Our multidisciplinary faculty conducts world-leading research on a wide range of health issues and leads community education and outreach to prevent cancer and other diseases, promote population health, and improve quality and access to healthcare in Missouri and beyond.
