Barefoot Gen by Keiji Nakazawa (ISBN#: 0-86719-602-5)

Class Time / Activities:

Day 1

• Students will review the concepts of propaganda and mobilization in a large group. While in the large group, the students will also discuss the differences between the American democratic government and the Japanese constitutional monarchy government, highlighting the major point of devotion to the Leader/Deity in a Japan.
  o It is important for the students to understand that the Japanese had a complete sense of devotion to the Emperor, to the point that they would sacrifice their life for him without question.
• Separate the students into five groups handing each group one of the sets of propaganda (Past, Enemy, Patriotism, Unity, Industry) posters/pictures used by the US and Japan. Have the students look at the images and break them down according to the questions below. (You may need to decipher the Japanese writing, but it could be more effective to have the students decipher the meaning of the image without knowing the text.)
  o Questions:
    ▪ Is the picture American or Japanese?
    ▪ What is happening in the image?
    ▪ What is the image telling the nation’s people?
    ▪ How is the image related to the topic (Past, Enemy, Patriotism, Unity, and Industry)?
• Pull the class back together and have each group share their findings with the class. Have the students fill in the first part of the assessment. Have them write a short summary for homework discussing which government, a constitutional monarchy or democracy, would need to rely more on propaganda.

Day2

• Discuss the term rationing with the students. Show them the American Rationing posters and explain the purpose of rationing and mobilization in during the war.
• Pass out or place the Barefoot Gen handout (Page 33) on the screen, and read through the page with the students. Have them discuss the three panels that talk about what the Japanese gave up during the war. Compare the panels to the posters that were discussed at the beginning of class and have the students fill in the Venn Diagram part of the assessment.
• Have the students relate the differences back to the types of government in each country. For homework, which nation seemed to give more during the war, and why.

PLANT A VICTORY GARDEN

OUR FOOD IS FIGHTING

A GARDEN WILL MAKE YOUR RATIONS GO FURTHER
I-I've already cooperated enough with the war effort...

My eldest son, Koji, has given up his studies to work in a factory, making weapons...

There are no metal pots and pans left in our house... They were all taken away to make warships, tanks and guns.

My children go hungry every day... They fight over one potato, one grain of rice... Why? Because the military takes all the food.

Yet we put up with all of it. How can you say we're not cooperating? How can you call us traitors?!

Shut up! That's all a matter of course for a Japanese!

How can poor people like us cooperate any more than this?!
