PH WINS Learning Collaborative Change Package

Change Management
The Public Health Workforce Interests and Needs Survey (PH WINS) is the first nationally representative survey of individual state health agency workers. More than 10,000 public health workers from 37 states and 14 cities participated in the 2014 survey. This document is part of a series of change packages, a collection of great ideas and practices aimed at promoting lasting change, that discusses findings from the 2016-2017 PH WINS Learning Collaborative (LC), supported by the Association of State and Territorial Health Officials (ASTHO) and the de Beaumont Foundation. Health department staff who participated in the LC completed PH WINS in 2014 and used the survey findings to develop and address a workforce development opportunity within their agencies through the LC. Participating health departments included the Boston Public Health Commission, Houston Health Department, Maryland Department of Health, Minnesota Department of Health, Nebraska Division of Public Health, and South Carolina Department of Health and Environmental Control.

These change packages aim to help public health agencies hire and retain a well-prepared workforce that finds a career in public health fulfilling and impactful. This specific change package provides a menu of potential actions that public health agencies can use related to change management. This document is organized into several sections:

- A table listing a goal that an agency might wish to accomplish related to change management. This is followed by several key changes that could support that goal, a potential list (“menu”) of different ideas that agency staff can try to affect the change, and associated resources that may assist with implementing the idea.
- General resources that could be helpful overall and address more than one idea.
- Stories (successes, lessons learned, and resources) from public health colleagues in the LC who have experience related to change management.

Please note that this document is not intended to be all-inclusive: it is meant to help agencies start thinking about change and present bold and creative ideas for impacting change. If you have ideas or suggestions for additions to this resource, please contact the PH WINS team at phwins@debeaumont.org.
Preparing for Change

The following best practices may be useful for agencies that are preparing for, or in the early stages of, change that affects the workforce:

- Conduct an organizational assessment to determine what your agency is already doing around change management. (This assessment may include some of the actions listed in this section.) The assessment may help agency leadership select priority actions, determine readiness for action, and identify initial steps. See “General Resources for Change Management” later in this document for links to existing organizational assessment guides.

- Explore your organization’s resources. Specifically, consider which existing policies, practices, workforce development plans, organized labor benefits, and structures could help support efforts related to change management or connect you to key formal or informal agency leaders. Additionally, consider your agency’s history and current climate relative to the change you seek. Some agencies will benefit from selecting basic actions to start, while other agencies with already-established initiatives may benefit from tackling more advanced ideas.

- Engage agency staff and stakeholders in planning and implementing interventions. Engaging diverse perspectives and knowledge will encourage buy-in and build a cohort of individuals who can champion change management. Internal agency representatives may include human resources, information technology systems, communications/public relations, management, and front-line staff. External resources may include academic institutions, professional associations, training providers, subject matter experts, or consultants. You may also choose to hold roundtable discussions or focus groups, form an advisory committee, conduct key informant interviews, or engage the broader workforce in a variety of other ways around change management.

- Clearly define what you are trying to accomplish. The clearer you are, the more directly you will be able to develop strategies to address the issue. Consider applying quality improvement methods to tackle the problem: Plan, Do, Study, Act cycles could provide structure to solving bigger organizational workforce issues.

- Changes and ideas presented in this document require different levels of organizational and individual commitment. Therefore, consider aligning your actions with your strategic plan and other guiding documents and explore any potential financial implications before taking any action.
This change package focuses on the following PH WINS measure:

- Managing change in response to dynamic, evolving circumstances.
- Anticipating the change in your environment (physical, political, environmental) that may influence your work.

The table below identifies a goal that an agency may want to achieve related to change management in the workforce. It is meant to serve as a guide for achieving or addressing the above PH WINS measures. Please note that the “Other Ideas to Try” incorporate evidence-based recommendations or actions without a link to a specific resource or tool. These ideas may also be specific to an agency’s location.

This change package is one of five that ASTHO and the de Beaumont Foundation developed to assist agencies with their workforce development initiatives. The other change packages discuss enhancing cultural awareness in the workforce, retention and succession planning, creating a culture of learning, and improving organizational communication. They include resources that may also be helpful for change management.

Nebraska's state health agency was without a division director for an extended period of time, which challenged the Nebraska LC team.

The Nebraska team had originally planned to create a communications strategy for its PH WINS project as part of the roll-out to employees. When the new division director arrived, the Nebraska LC team learned that it should have begun to draft the strategy at the project onset, projecting patterns of expected communication needs, presumed audiences, and benchmarks. This would have helped the Nebraska team manage its project better, and would have also helped orient the new state health official to the project if the Nebraska LC team had been more prepared to frequently deliver relevant information.

During the PH WINS LC, Minnesota’s LC team experienced both turnover on the team and the addition of a new health equity director. The team adapted, transforming the staff changes into opportunities. The team focused on obtaining both verbal and written support from leadership to ensure the success of the project regardless of leadership changes, and built on momentum for improving workforce development within the agency by planning, prioritizing, and streamlining efforts. The team remained committed to the project and worked together by assigning responsibilities based on project needs as well as team member expertise.

Reflections & Acknowledgements

Reflections from the PH WINS Team
ASTHO saw all the teams experience and effectively manage changes to their organizations and teams throughout the project period. These adjustments included changes in leadership as well as changes to organizational and individual job priorities. In the midst of change, teams worked together to overcome challenges and successfully shift project direction as needed.

ASTHO
The Association of State and Territorial Health Officials (ASTHO) is the national nonprofit organization representing public health agencies in the United States, the U.S. Territories, and the District of Columbia, and over 100,000 public health professionals these agencies employ. A STHO members, the chief health officials of these jurisdictions, formulate and influence sound public health policy and ensure excellence in state-based public health practice. A STHO’s primary function is to track, evaluate, and advise members on the impact and formation of public or private health policy which may affect them and to provide them with guidance and technical assistance on improving the nation’s health. A STHO’s vision is “state and territorial health agencies advancing health equity and optimal health for all,” and its mission is “to support, equip, and advocate for state and territorial health officials in their work of advancing the public’s health and well-being.”

de Beaumont Foundation
The de Beaumont Foundation’s mission is to strengthen and transform public health in the United States by improving the effectiveness and capacity of local and state health departments. We believe that a strong public health system is essential and work to improve the practice of public health through thought leadership and strategic and engaged grantmaking. Programs funded by the Foundation build the capacity and stature of the public health workforce, improve public health infrastructure, and advance the distribution of information and data in the field.
