Do you have a job, go to school, or live on your own, and have an Intellectual and Developmental Disability? We want to hear from you!

Post-Secondary Success Stories: Perspectives of Adults with Intellectual and Developmental Disability (IDD) (HM20016725)

Researchers at Virginia Commonwealth University are currently recruiting participants for a study to better understand what helps people succeed in employment, post-secondary education, and/or independent living.

Your story of life after K-12 school can help increase awareness of the incredible possibilities life can hold for students with IDD. As a thank you for participation in a 60-minute interview, you will receive a $25 gift card.

Email Lindsay Kozachuk at kozachukl@vcu.edu today to see if you qualify!

Participants must be 18 years or older, have IDD, and be employed, enrolled in post-secondary education, and/or living independently to qualify for participation in this study. Contact Laron Scott, Ph.D. at scottla2@vcu.edu for questions or concerns.
