Introduction

Common River (CR) is a US-based 501(c)3 nonprofit public benefit organization that implements community development programs in Aleta Wondo, Ethiopia.

Mission: to empower the community to become balanced, productive and self-sustaining for others to witness and replicate, while honoring cultural heritage and environmental biodiversity.

Using a collaborative approach with key stakeholders, current organizational challenges and goals were first identified. Next, an evaluation design was created to guide the process of assessing organizational performance. Once data was analyzed using an integrated approach, a series of recommendations were established to help guide leadership.
Objectives

- Provide leadership with tools and guidance to make the best use of available resources.
- Clarify the CR leadership team’s focus enabling them to make appropriate decisions about moving forward with strategic planning initiatives and capacity building efforts.
- Identify viable capacity building strategies that will best empower CR in effectively utilizing current assets to better align programs and services with their mission and community needs.

Research Questions

- Is CR’s mission statement still viable, relevant, and desirable?
- Is CR performing at their optimal level and in accordance with their stated mission, vision, and values?
- Is CR’s current programming in alignment with their stated mission and values?
- How can CR build their capacity with limited resources?
- Is CR fully utilizing identified opportunities and strengths and how can they best address weaknesses and threats?
