Examining Privilege

By now, many people are familiar with the idea of "social privilege". This session traces the history of the concept, exploring why it remains crucial to work around diversity and inclusion. Participants will also discuss ways they can help support and encourage those with less privilege.

February 19 | Billings A 109 | 12PM

Confronting Microaggressions

Despite being fairly common, micro-aggressions and their harms are often misunderstood. In this session, participants will explore the concept in greater detail, learning about the social science behind the phenomenon. We will also explore strategies to mitigate their impact in our environments.

March 14 | Billings J 103 | 12PM

Imagination as Practice

Ideas about social justice are commonly written-off as infeasible or impractical. How can we sustain our social imagination in the face of such criticism? This experimental thinkshop focuses on the role of imagination in effectively carrying out social justice work. Participants will be encouraged to think about the importance of envisioning future political realities that aspire for greater inclusion.

April 26 | Billings J 103 | 12PM