CHAS Seed Grant Program

MARK YOUR CALENDAR NOW

Seed Grant November 1
application due

A call for applications will be made in October; however, general information about eligibility and requirements may be found here.

Beginning in 2005, the Center for Health Administration Studies (CHAS) at the School of Social Service Administration has supported promising health services and policy research projects at the University of Chicago through its annual Seed-Grant Program. The purpose of the Seed-Grant program is to facilitate research not presently funded by extramural sources, laying the foundations for larger-scale research projects that may be competitive for extramural funding. The Program seeks to fund projects that display sound research design with high potential impact on health services and policies affecting the disadvantaged.

The Center anticipates funding up to 5 projects in amounts up to $20,000. Indirect costs will not be covered. Projects are to be conducted over a 12-month period beginning in January.

CHAS Research Tool Kit

CHAS has developed a Research Tool Kit to provide resources that may be of assistance in the preparation of research proposals and presentations. This toolkit will change over time and add new resources to meet your needs. Send your ideas for additions to the toolkit to jiesberg@uchicago.edu
